COVID-19 is Not Going Away—Continue to Take Precautions

While we all want it to go away, the fact is that COVID-19 is not going away. In fact, Orange County is the remaining Southern California county to remain in the Red Tier but there is indication that we may be moving into the more restrictive Tier within the next few weeks which would mean that indoor dining would close again and most indoor church services would curtail. For latest information, please go to www.ochealthinfo.com. To better understand the State's Blueprint and Tier system, please click here.

If you are concerned and want to get testing, the SuperSites, one of which is located at the Anaheim Convention Center, offer free testing (provide your insurance information) and the testing results will now include whether you are infected with influenza type A or B. Given that we are now in the Flu season, it is important to monitor your health and continue to take all precautions. Face coverings are effective and easy. For more information on the testing sites, please click here.
